Democratizing AI for All

Artificial Intelligence is no longer the domain of a select few. It is fast becoming a universal force—reshaping industries, transforming the workplace, and redefining the skills required to thrive in a technology-driven world. As we stand on the brink of this AI-powered transformation, the most pressing need is to make AI education and skills accessible to all.

There is a growing global realization that AI must not deepen existing divides, but rather bridge them. From remote learners to working professionals, from students to senior engineers—everyone must have the opportunity to understand, apply, and innovate using AI tools. Such inclusivity is vital not only for individual empowerment but also for national development.

India has been quick to recognize this. Through digital literacy missions, skilling programmes, and AI curriculum integration, our nation is laying the foundation for an AI-ready future. Initiatives to promote responsible AI usage among school children and youth reflect a forward-looking vision that combines technological progress with ethical awareness.

At The Institution of Engineers (India), we remain deeply committed to fostering capacity-building and up-skilling in emerging technologies. Through a wide spectrum of initiatives—including seminars, webinars, technical courses, and academic publications—we aim to create accessible and relevant learning opportunities for all. It is imperative that we cultivate a culture where lifelong learning becomes a defining principle, not a rare pursuit.

AI has the potential to accelerate solutions in healthcare, climate action, infrastructure, and more. But for that to happen at scale, we must democratize access to AI tools, training, and awareness. Let us pledge to make this revolution inclusive—so that no aspiring mind is left behind in the race to the future.

Dr N Sivasubramanian, Dr Seeram Satyanarayana, Dr M.R.Suresh, Er P Balakrishnan Nair & Dr S Ramesh. Panelists opined that manufacturing of semiconductor chip is a high capital intensive, technologically driven/challenging and multi disciplined activity and India to become self-reliant in this issue. Further, more thrust is essential at all the three levels of academia, R&D institutions, and industries.

The panelists also expressed their concern about the large consumption of purified water in the semiconductor industry and stressed on addressing the mitigation strategies.

During the valedictory function, Er P Rajamani, Past Vice President, IEI addressed the gathering. the session was presided by Prof (Dr) P Udhaya Kumar. Dr N Sivasubramanian summed up the proceedings of deliberation. Er A T baskar proposed the vote of thanks.

Recommendations emanating from the two-day fruitful deliberations are furnished hereunder.

Semiconductor manufacturing is a highly capital intensive, and challenging category. To achieve higher quality and larger quantity semiconductor chips, in Indian scenarion, large efforts and initiatives are required.

Semiconductor manufacturing needs large quantity of ultra-pure water (1,50,000 Ton per day), pure crystalline silicon, of 99.9999(9N) purity or Germanium, pure gas and huge electrical energy. Thus, alternate method of utilizing renewable energy has to be planned.

To meet the huge quantity of pure water, recycling, reclaiming and reuse methods are required to conserve the water resources. Subsequent waste disposal, effluent reconditioning has to be planned.

Availability of skilled manpower and talented workforce are essential through periodic training and upskilling the knowledge base. The stability of trained manpower at the shop floor as well as at the design level are essential.

Ability to cope up with fast changing technology, innovation and adaptability has to be looked in. The facility infrastructure also need periodic upgradation and adaptation to newer set up, as and when required.

The realization of semiconductor chip involves design, choice of materials and its processing, chemical processing like doping, extreme ultra violet lithography, etching, slicing, packaging & assembly and inspection & testing. The entire process is challenging and require a separate entity, then only importance will be addressed in this area.

58th ENGINEERS' DAY

Theme: Deep Tech & Engineering Excellence: Driving India's Techade

September 15 is celebrated every year in the country since the year 1967 as "Engineers' Day" to commemorate the birthday of the legendary engineer Sir Mokshagundam Visvesvaraya. Sir Visvesvaraya, an eminent Indian engineer and statesman was born in a remote village of Karnataka, the State that is incidentally now the Hi-tech State of the country. Due to his outstanding contribution to the society, Government of India conferred "Bharat Ratna" on this legend in the year 1955. He was also called the precursor of economic planning in India. His learned discourse on Economic Planning in India, Planned Economy for India and Reconstructing India, was the first available document on the planning effort of the country and it is still held as the parent source matter for economic planners. A theme of national importance is chosen every year by the Council of the Institution and deliberated at its various State/Local Centres to educate the engineering fraternity in general and the society in particular. This year the 58th Engineers' Day will be celebrated all over the country on the theme "Deep Tech & Engineering Excellence: Driving India's Techade".

Bharat Ratna Sir M Visvesvaraya

On 15th September 2025, The Institution of Engineers (India) (IEI) celebrates Engineers' Day across all State and Local Centres, paying tribute to Sir M. Visvesvaraya, whose vision laid the foundation for engineering excellence in India. The theme, "Deep Tech & Engineering Excellence: Driving India's Techade," underscores the crucial role of engineers in steering AI, Quantum Computing, Semiconductors, Robotics, and Advanced Materials toward national growth and global competitiveness.

As India enters its Techade, deep tech innovations are reshaping industries and redefining progress. Unlike conventional IT solutions, these technologies demand long-term R&D, scientific rigor, and advanced engineering expertise. Recognizing this, the Government of India introduced the National Deep Tech Start-up Policy (NDTSP) in 2024 to support startups and researchers working on transformative technologies. But fostering deep tech is not just about policies—it requires a robust ecosystem where research translates into industrial applications, and engineers play a defining role in this shift.

IEI, with its rich legacy of advancing engineering research and innovation, has long been a catalyst in this transformation. Through its R&D Grant-in-Aid Scheme, IEI has supported breakthrough ideas even at the undergraduate level, enabling young engineers to experiment, innovate, and create impactful solutions. This commitment to engineering-led progress has earned IEI recognition as a Scientific and Industrial Research Organization (SIRO) by the Ministry of Science & Technology, Government of India. By fostering research, bridging academia with industry, and nurturing talent, IEI has positioned itself as a key enabler of India's deep tech journey.

As we mark Engineers' Day 2025, it is evident that deep tech is no longer an emerging field—it is the present and the future. The challenge ahead is immense, but so is the opportunity.
